Highlights for September 18-24:

A Hundred Years Ago & A Hundred Years from Now

Kids at Guadalupe Elementary have been rockin’ and rollin’ with the program Little Kids Rock as they study music after school with teacher David Gerbic. Multiple Grammy award-winning rock guitarist Joe Satriani will be talking with Guadalupe’s 4th grade students about music and surprising them with a gift of ten new acoustic guitars, two electric guitars and amplifiers, and a five piece drum set with cymbals.

When: Monday, September 19 / 3:00 – 4:00 p.m.
Where: Guadalupe ES / 859 Prague Street

Last year, Cleveland Elementary alum and volunteer John Weidinger discovered a time capsule had been buried in the school’s cornerstone a hundred years ago. The capsule was removed and opened in front of students and staff alike to reveal touching letters from students who attended Cleveland in 1910 as well as photos and manuscripts. Now current students have created a new capsule to bury with their own mementos including a letter to future classes, news clips of the Giants baseball championship, a school lunch menu plus a copy of the contents of the 1910 capsule. The new capsule will be ceremoniously buried in the same cornerstone.

When: Monday, September 19 / 9:30 a.m.
Where: Cleveland ES / 455 Athens St.

Glen Park Elementary is celebrating their school’s 100 year anniversary and the completion of extensive upgrades to its building. While the building has great new features, some things haven’t changed much in 100 years; students will be playing games, listening to live music and participating in a hula-hoop contest. The school recently received extensive ADA upgrades inside and out, as well as plumbing, fire & life safety improvements along with a new play structure and space prepared for a future green garden. This work was made possible with 2006 Bond funds approved by San Francisco voters.

When: Saturday, Sept. 24 / 1:00 p.m.
Where: Glen Park ES / 151 Lippard Ave.
